Problem Statement

Formula 1 is rapidly going digital, with fans seeking personalized, interactive, and emotional connections beyond traditional race-day experiences.

Current digital platforms — are mostly static and lack emotional depth. 60% of sports fans want more interactive experiences; the global fan engagement market is projected to hit $42B by 2030.

Stronger digital bonds directly drive 20–30% higher merchandise sales, loyalty, and brand value, while weak connections risk losing fans to rival teams or sports.

Existing gaps: Ai.lonso lacks emotional intelligence, real-time responsiveness, and gamified interactivity, making it feel more like a novelty than a true companion.

The Digital Engagement Gap in F1

Digital Fan Expectations

Current Shortcomings of Ai.lonso

- ✗ No Emotional Support
- ✗ No personalization
- ✗ No Gamification

Ai.lonso is underutilized, providing only one-way updates

Competitor Benchmark in Fan Engagement

NBA & FIFA leverage gamification and avatars; F1 is lagging.

Ai.lonso vs Other F1 AI Avatars: A Clear Advantage

Aspect	Ai.lonso	Other AI Avatars
Accessibility 	Works for blind, deaf, kids, seniors (sign language, haptic feedback, simple commentary).	Only text or voice, not inclusive.
Emotional Connection 	Shows and reacts to fan emotions in real-time.	Robotic, no emotional response.
 Fan Engagement 	Games, memes, AR selfies, live Q&A, polls.	Mostly one-way updates, less fun.
Personalization 	Custom experience for each fan.	Same content for all.
Heritage & Storytelling 	Links today's race with F1 history.	Focus only on current race.
    	Advanced AI (emotion detection, multilingual, haptics).	Basic chatbot-like features.
